Opening up Polish research to the world

An Institutional Research Licence for Poland

The ICM Consortium in Poland and IOP Publishing (IOP) have signed a new Institutional Research Licence to bring you open access funding for your research. The licence enables you to publish your articles on an open access basis in the majority of IOPs hybrid titles as well as selected journals which are published on behalf of our society partners. We hope you will be able to benefit from this initiative.

There are just three steps to submit your article to one of the eligible IOP Publishing journals for funding:

Submission

The corresponding author must be affiliated with an eligible institution (see list on reverse). When you submit your paper please supply your affiliation clearly in the article submission form and in the article itself.

Identification

Your article will be identified and you will be notified during the peer-review process, or shortly after acceptance. Your paper will automatically be opted in to open access.

Acceptance and publication

IOP Publishing will validate the article with a dedicated contact at the ICM Consortium to approve funding. If for any reason funding is declined, you will have the option to find alternative funding or return to publication at no charge on a subscription basis.

Your paper will then be published open access under a CC-BY license. You can share it as you wish and the article will comply with funder mandates.

Please let us know if you have any questions. We look forward to publishing your next research paper.
